UTENSILS

Karat® Utensils can be used to cut into or eat any type of food. Our utensils range from medium-weight to extra heavy-weight plastic so it's easy to find the set that best suits your operational needs. If you're tired of standard black and white utensils, Karat® offers an assortment of colors and styles that will create the ideal dining experience for your customers.

did you know?

The earliest utensils ever created were first used by our Paleolithic ancestors over 500,000 years ago, with crude forms of the knife being one of the first eating utensils ever made. Others, such as the fork, are relatively new. The first use of a fork recorded in history was in central Europe during the 11th century. Utensils continue to evolve even today, with plastic introducing new possibilities for the designs of eating utensils. A great example of this is the spork.

1 x 1-Ply Napkin, Individually Poly Wrapped

NAPKINS

Napkins are an essential part of dining, whether food or drinks are served. Choose from our interfold napkins for dispensers or add a touch of class to the table with our 2 or 3 ply dinner napkins. Karat® Napkins are available in different sizes and colors.

did you know?

A few centuries ago, it was correct to tuck the napkin into the shirt or to wrap it around the neck and tie it. In homes that were budget conscious, the napkins were barely long enough to reach around the neck to tie, thus originating the phrase "to make ends meet."

CUSTOM PRINTING

By simply printing a company logo or design, you can effectively bring out your company's individuality, character, and style to promote your brand image. With fast turnaround times and high-quality printing, you can easily advertise your business by letting your brand be the next conversation starter. Customize all your foodservice products from paper cups to food containers, and more. Read the details below on our custom printing process and let us help you take your branding and marketing efforts to the next level!

💧 Understanding the Printing Methods

Color Process Printing: (4 color process)

- » This term refers to a printing process which uses Cyan, Magenta, Yellow, and Black (CMYK) to reproduce a wide range of colors by mixing the colors together as they are printed.
- » A wide range of colors can be printed with just 4 color plates, so the number of colors allowable on each design is much higher.
- » PANTONE® (PMS) color codes can be provided as a final color reference, but not all PANTONE® (PMS) colors can be reproduced accurately.

VS

Spot Color Printing

- » This term refers to a printing process that uses a pre-mixed color system, also known as PANTONE® colors.
- » Inks are pre-mixed prior to printing, so maximum number of printed colors is limited.
- » When requesting artwork please provide your PANTONE® (PMS) color codes for best results.
- » Due to the use of food-grade inks, not all PANTONE® colors can be achieved.
- » PANTONE® colors will vary depending on the printable material.
- » Please note that the same color may appear differently on different mediums.

Disclaimers

Artwork

Clients take full responsibility in obtaining the copyrights of the design(s) involved in their custom print order.

Color Accuracy

There is much higher degree of color accuracy when PANTONE® Color codes are provided. When a PANTONE® Color code is provided, finished products are expected to be within 2 PANTONE® Colors, either up or down (refer to PANTONE® Solid color book). Due to food grade inks, not all PANTONE® Color codes can be achieved, and any possible replacement is only at the manufacturer's discretion.

Ink Odor

As a result of printing with food grade inks, a degree of ink odor should be expected in all custom printed products. Any possible replacement is only at the manufacturer's discretion.

Plate Charges

Plate charges will not be charged for reprint orders provided the existing plates are in good condition. If left unused, printing plates have a maximum life of 18 months. Customer will be notified if new plates will be necessary for their re-print orders and subsequently billed for the new plates.

Minimum & Lead Times

All stated minimums apply for each size and/or design ordered. Minimums are subject to change at any time. Due to the nature of custom printed products, there may be a +/- 10% over/under run (variance between amount ordered and amount produced). Lead times are estimated and are not guaranteed.

Print Gap

For plastic cups, a small gap is left between the leading edge of the design so that the design does not overlap. For paper cups and food containers, normal printing procedure is to leave a white area around the bottom rim, as indicated on the template. Clients can make a special request to extend artwork to the bottom rim but this will result in ink spear on the cup both inside and out.
